SUMMARY OF CAREER

At the beginning of 2009, Ross Garnaut took on the roles of Vice-Chancellor's Fellow and Professorial Fellow (Faculty of Economics and Commerce) at the University of Melbourne. Ross Garnaut has had a professional base at The Australian National University throughout his career, and from that base has made major contributions in part-time positions and through lengthy secondments in business, government and diplomacy. The consistent themes of his career have been the analysis and management of development and international economic relations in Asia and the Pacific and of national policy in Australia. He now has a part-time appointment as Distinguished Professor with research responsibilities at The Australian National University.

BUSINESS

Chairman of Lihir Gold Ltd (1995 to present). Was foundation Chairman of the company, formed to develop a major gold mine in Papua New Guinea. Led the company through the Initial Public Offering on the Australian (ASX) and American (NASDAQ) stock exchanges in 1995, which financed construction of the mine, through first production 1997, and through its subsequent development. Managed at Board level substantial change in ownership, Board composition and financial structure to facilitate successful operation in a low gold price environment, to the achievement of high market capitalisation (now in the top 70 on the Australian Stock Exchange) after the transition from contract to independent management in 2005.

Chairman of the PNG Sustainable Development Program (PNGSDP) Limited (from 2002). This company was established to receive as a gift the controlling equity of BHP Billiton in the Ok Tedi copper and gold mine, and to utilise the dividend flow (estimated at $US50 million per annum at long-term average metal prices) for long-term development in Papua New Guinea. Appointed by BHP Billiton. Appointed to represent PNGSDP on the Board of Directors of Ok Tedi Mining Limited.

Chairman of Lonely Planet Publications Pty Ltd (from 2002 to 2004). Lonely Planet is the world's largest independent publisher of travel guides and literature, with headquarters in Melbourne. Appointed to guide process of development of a closely held private company into one with the structure and processes to manage external equity and debt as a base for expansion.

Chairman of the Board of Directors, Primary Industry Bank of Australia (1989 to 1994). A small, initially Commonwealth Government-owned bank specialising in rural lending established by the Fraser-Anthony government in the early 1980s, and subsequently purchased by the Bank of Western Australia. Underwent considerable expansion and major structural change to build a commercial focus during the period of Garnaut's chairmanship, while coming to generate consistently high returns on equity, in the latter years the highest of Australian banks. Prepared for privatisation and sold to the major European agricultural bank Rabobank in 1994.

Chairman of the Board of Directors, Bank of Western Australia Ltd (BankWest), 1988 to 1995 (appointed by Downing Labor Government, reappointed by Court Coalition Government). Led the re-organisation of a State bank with one quarter of the banking business in Western Australia, which was reflected in improvement in its performance from the low returns associated with the old state banks to the upper ranks of returns on equity in Australian banking in the year immediately preceding successful privatisation in 1995. Prepared the bank for privatisation (effected by sale to Bank of Scotland and later partial re-sale through public float on the Australian Stock Exchange). Had personal responsibility for the complex restructuring of the top layers of management in preparation for commercialisation and corporatisation and for development of the privatisation strategy and appointment of the executive leadership to take it forward. As a result of his personal initiatives as Chairman, the Bank of Western Australia was the first of the Australian commercial banks to recognise the deterioration of quality of loan assets in the 1989-1991 recession; the firm and timely action taken at the time caused the Bank of Western Australia to be the only State Bank in Australia to emerge strongly from the recession.

Other experience as Chairman of the Board of Directors of Aluminium Smelters of Victoria (1988-1990) and of Sequoia Capital Management Limited (2003-2006); Chairman, Phillip Asia Capital Management Limited (Melbourne and Singapore) (2006-2008); consultant to Phillips Petroleum on the Australia-East Timor fiscal regime for natural gas development in the Timor Sea; advisor to Exxon and Woodside on fiscal arrangements in the petroleum industry.

GOVERNMENT AND DIPLOMACY

For more than two decades has been frequently consulted on economic and foreign policy at ministerial including Prime Ministerial level in Australia and several other Asia Pacific countries.

Conducted review on Climate Change and Policy Response to Climate Change for the Federal, State and Territory governments of Australia (2007-2008). Reported on the likely effect of human induced climate change on Australia's environment and economy in the absence of effective national and international efforts to substantially cut greenhouse gas emissions; the possible ameliorating effects of international policy reform on climate change, and the costs and benefits of various international and Australian policy interventions on Australian economic activity; the role that Australia can play in the development and implementation of effective international policies on climate change; and recommended medium to long-term policy options for Australia, and the time path for their implementation which, taking the costs and benefits of domestic and international policies on climate change into account, will produce the best possible outcomes for Australia. The Garnaut Climate Change Review (Cambridge University Press, Melbourne 2008) was presented to the Australian Prime Minister on the 30th September 2008.

Chairman of the Review of Commonwealth-State Funding, 2002, presenting the Review of Commonwealth-State Funding to the Governments of New South Wales, Victoria and Western Australia.

Author of Australia and the Northeast Asian Ascendancy, presented to the Australian Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs and Trade, October 1989. Recognised as marking a historic point of change in Australian international economic policy and in domestic policy reform.

Australian Ambassador to the People's Republic of China (1985 to 1988). This was a time known for a considerable expansion and diversification of Sino-Australian economic, educational and political relations. Highlights included the beginning of two-way direct foreign investment, including the negotiation of what were the first large-scale Chinese direct investments abroad, in the Mt Channar iron ore mine (with Hammersley Iron) and the Portland aluminium smelter (with Alcoa), and the beginnings of the successful Australian challenge to American primacy in research and graduate education involving China.

Chairman of the Wool Review Committee, which presented its report Wool: Structuring for Global Realities to the Australian Minister for Primary Industries and Energy in August 1993 (legislation embodying the Report's main recommendations was passed by both Houses of the Australian Parliament in 1993).

Principal economic adviser to Australian Prime Minister R.J.L. Hawke, 1983 to 1985. Closely involved in all Commonwealth economic policy-making on major matters during this period. Made a distinctive contribution to the international orientation of economic policy of the Hawke government, including policy on financial and trade liberalisation, the Australian initiation of Western Pacific regional consultations on international trade issues and what became the Uruguay Round, and the intensification of relations with China, Japan and other Asia Pacific economies. Was a special emissary of the Prime Minister on trade policy issues to Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore, the Philippines, the People's Republic of China, Hong Kong, Republic of Korea and Japan.

Research Director, ASEAN-Australia Economic Relations Research Project, 1981 to 1983. This project, an initiative of Prime Minister Fraser, was instrumental in establishing what became the principal networks linking economists in Australia, Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines. In the course of establishing the project in 1979, with Professor H.W. Arndt, engaged in consultations with governments and academic institutions in all ASEAN countries, on Australian-ASEAN economic relations, at the request of Prime Minister Fraser.

Assistant Chairman (to Sir John Crawford), of the first Pacific Economic Co-operation Conference, the direct antecedent of Asia Pacific Economic Co-operation (APEC), in 1980. In preparation for the meeting, at the request of Prime Ministers Ohira of Japan and Fraser of Australia, engaged in consultations on the way forward in Asia Pacific Economic Co-operation, at Cabinet and head of government level, in Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, the Philippines, Korea, Japan, Fiji, Papua New Guinea, the United States and Canada.

First Assistant Secretary, (Head of the General Financial and Economic Policy Division), and Deputy to Finance Secretary Mekere Morauta, Papua New Guinea Ministry of Finance, 1975 and 1976, which straddled Independence in September 1975. This work is remembered especially for the framework of fiscal and monetary stability that was established at that time, and for innovations in mining fiscal policy and agreements. A strong professional team of Papua New Guineans and expatriates was established, which retained its strength and coherence until the late 1980s. Major economic policy events over the period for which Garnaut had direct management responsibility in the Ministry of Finance, included the introduction of a national currency (1 January 1976) and the post-independence establishment of Papua New Guinea's international credit worthiness without an Australian government guarantee. For one and a half decades after Independence Papua New Guinea was known for its macro-economic stability (inflation substantially lower than in Australia and no currency convertibility or debt problems) and for the effectiveness of its mineral taxation policy and law (the Resource Rent Tax introduced in the mid-1970s has been emulated in about a dozen countries, including for petroleum in Australia), on the basis of policies locked in place 1974-76. The influential book, The Taxation of Mineral Rents, (Clarendons Press, Oxford, 1983) was a long-term product of this work.

Other experience includes as Member and Deputy Chairman of the Australia China Council (1989-93); member of the Advisory Council to the Australian Minister for Foreign Affairs (1997 to 2002); head of the Australian delegation to South Africa (reporting to the leadership of the African National Congress) for consultations on post-apartheid economic policy (1991) in response to a request from Nelson Mandela; head of the Australian Mission to Korea on economic policy and industrial relations in a new democracy (with the President of the Australian Council of Trade Unions and the Chief Executive of the Metal Trades Industries Association as the other members of the Mission), reporting to President Roh Tae Woo, 1989; leader of a group convened by the Asian Development Bank to advise Vietnamese leaders on responses to the East Asian financial crisis (reporting to the General Secretary of the Vietnamese Communist Party and the Premier), 1997; Senior Adviser, Commonwealth Secretariat, providing advice on fiscal and petroleum and mining policy issues at Cabinet level to governments in Africa, the Caribbean and the South Pacific from time to time 1978-82, including for a period from a London base, 1981; various consulting and advisory assignments, for the World Bank, Asian Development Bank and International Monetary Fund and for governments at Cabinet and head of government level in Southeast Asia, China, Africa, the Caribbean, the South Pacific, Canada and New Zealand. Chairman of Board of Directors, Western Australia China Technical and Economic Research Fund 1988-95 (other members of Board were the Western Australian Minister for Resources Development and the Chinese Vice Minister for Metallurgical Industry); adviser to the United States Internal Revenue Service and expert witness before the United States Tax Court on taxation of the international operations of American multinational companies in the resource sector (1997-2000); founding member of the Australia-United States Leadership Dialogue (participated in all annual meetings 1991 to 2001 except 2000); Chairman of the Papua New Guinea Advisory Group on privatisation 1999-2002.

ACADEMIC AND RESEARCH

Has occupied academic positions in the Institute of Advanced Studies at The Australian National University since graduating with a PhD in economics in 1972. His doctoral thesis Australian Trade with Southeast Asia: A Study of Resistances to Bilateral Trade Flows, was based on several months fieldwork in each of the original 5 ASEAN countries (Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines) in 1969 and 1970. He is author of over 35 books and numerous influential scholarly articles on economic development, public finance and international economic relations in the Asia Pacific region (list of publications attached).

Garnaut was Professor of Economics in the Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies at The Australian National University from 1989 to 2008. From 1989 to 1998 he was Head of the Economics Department, and Economics Division. Building on contributions of three predecessors dating back to 1962 as head of the Economics Division of the Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies (Professors J.G. Crawford, H.W. Arndt and M.W. Corden), Garnaut helped to establish The Australian National University as the world's most important single centre for research and graduate education on the Asia Pacific economies, and Australia's most important centre of research and graduate education in economics. Over Garnaut's period as Head of Division, academic personnel increased fourfold and graduate students tenfold, entirely as a result of use of funding from non-University sources. He has been a part-time Professor without executive responsibilities since 2000 but continues as Chairman of the China Economy and Business Programme, Chairman of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Asian Pacific Economic Literature and Chairman of the Editorial Board of the Bulletin of Indonesian Economic Studies. In 2008, Garnaut was made Distinguished Professor of the Australian National University.

To consolidate its strengths in Asia Pacific economics and related areas of business and public policy, The Australian National University established a new Asia Pacific School of Economics and Management (APSEM) (later Asia Pacific School of Economics and Government) in 1998, with Garnaut as its Foundation Director to 2000. APSEM comprised six centres (Australia Asia Management Centre; Australia Japan Research Centre; Australia South Asia Research Centre; Economics Division; National Centre for Development Studies; Graduate Program in Public Policy) and three regional programs (Southeast Asian Economy Program; China Economy and Business Program; Korea Economy Program).

Garnaut has personally played major roles in building The Australian National University's research and graduate education strengths on the economies of Southeast Asia (including as Director of the Australia ASEAN Research Project from 1980 until 1983, and as Chairman of the Board of the Indonesia Project since 1989), China, Korea, India and Papua New Guinea, and on Asia Pacific Economic Co-operation. He has made influential analytic contributions in public finance and international economics. He was Adjunct Professor of Pacific Basin Economics at Columbia University in New York from 1988 to 1991.

In 2009, Garnaut was appointed as Vice Chancellor's Fellow at the University of Melbourne and a Professorial Fellow within the Faculty of Economics and Commerce at the University of Melbourne. This part-time appointment commenced after the completion of the Garnaut Climate Change Review. He is attached to the Department of Economics and the Melbourne Institute of Applied Economic and Social Research in the Faculty of Economics and Commerce.

As Chairman of the Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research from 1994 to 2000, Garnaut was responsible to the Minister for Foreign Affairs for the management of a large research program (with an annual budget in his final year of $48 million) in agricultural and related sciences in developing economies, principally in Asia and the Pacific. (Appointed by Keating Government in 1994; re-appointed by Howard Government in 1997). Led the Centre into and through a major Review, the implementation of some of the recommendations of which led to substantial management re-structuring to increase relevance and productivity.

As Chairman of the economic forecasting group of the Pacific Economic Co-operation Council from 2001 to 2004, was responsible for co-ordinating the work of leading groups of economic analysts in 19 countries in the production twice a year of the forecasting publication Pacific Economic Outlook.

He is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) (2006 to 2009), having been a director on the Board of Trustees since 2003. IFPRI is the world's most important and influential centre for economic and wider social science research on rural development through the developing world. Its headquarters is in Washington DC (USA) with branches in India, China, Ethiopia, Costa Rica and Mexico. It employs about one hundred professional researchers (with PhD qualifications).

He was joint editor of Australian Quarterly from 1992 to 1996.
